

WE RING THE BELL!

An overview of the campaign results of 2018

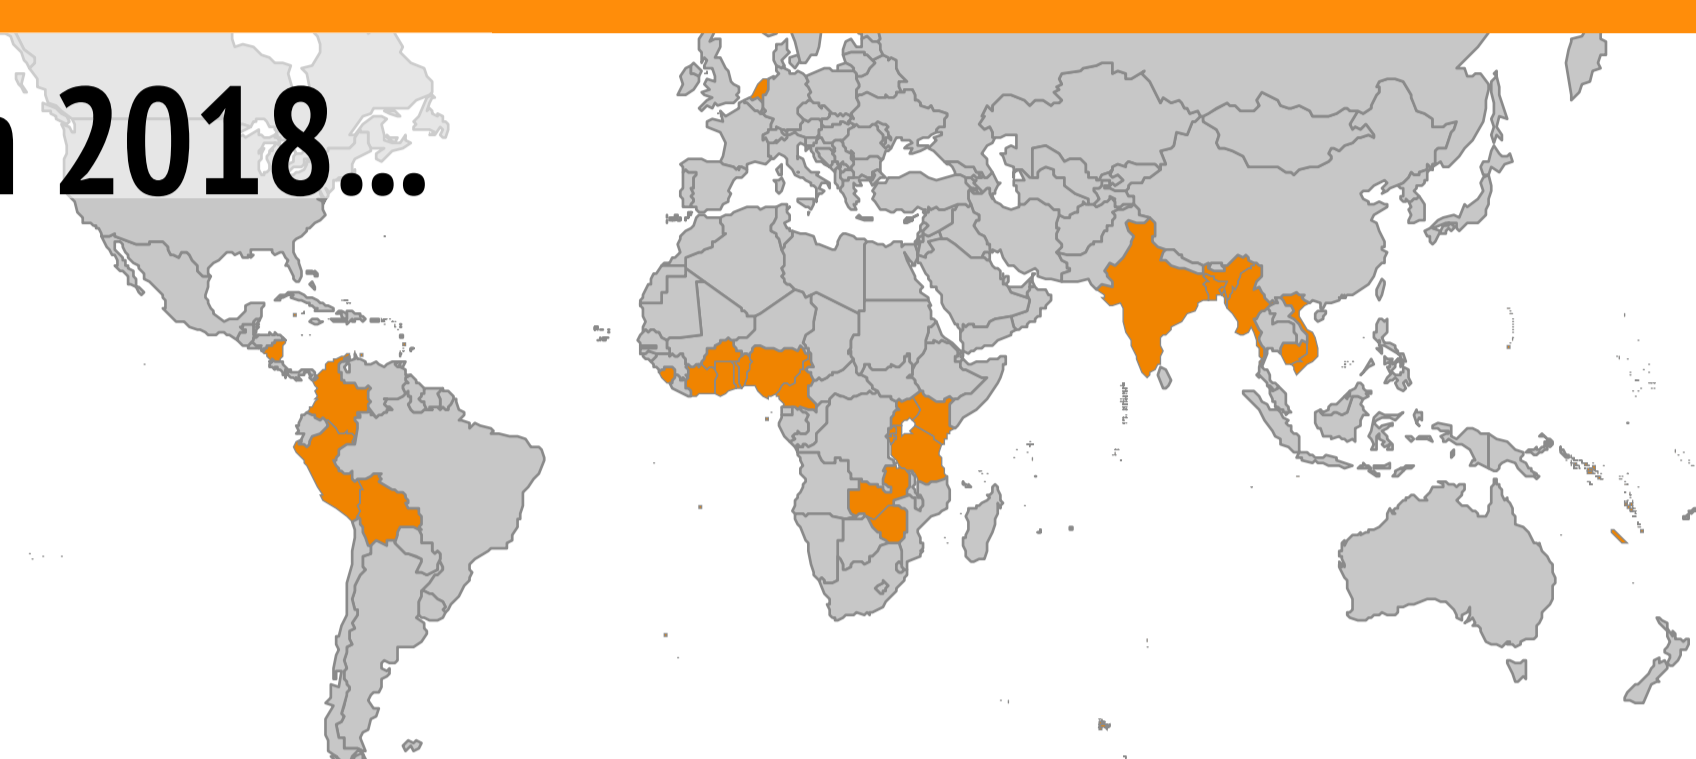

Urgent Matter #1:

All children want to be able to reach school. Including disabled children.

Liliane Fonds

In 2018...

264.540 children

in

1.584 schools

... rang the bell in 26 countries!

Baindu Dassama, Sierra Leone's Minister of Social Welfare, Gender & Childrens Affairs, signs #manifesto and hangs it above desk as a reminder of her commitment to ensure that children with a disability are #welcometoschool. May many politicians follow her example.

Our manifest

"All children want to be able to.."

receive good guidance

visit the restroom

make friends

get positive attention

just be a kid

play

reach school

receive 'honest' education

enter and pass through the school

get help from their parents

Our manifest is already signed by 26.594 people in 102 out of 195 countries...

Why participating in 2019 is important?

It is time that 'accessible education' becomes reality in all nations. That all schools cease their barriers. That all children get fair opportunities. That all parents are able and dare to stand up for their children. And that all authorities ensure that the right to education for all children is respected and is something they are committed to.

All children with a disability must feel welcome at school. Wherever in the world they are.
